MADE MRS. DAY AT MIDNIGHT

Miss Elizabeth Grant, a Belle of Philadelphia, Defies Father, Elopes with Lover and Is Married.

Mrs. Jesse Gould Day, who re at the Hotel Astor, may return to hiladelphia to-day—that is, if they reselve a few encouraging lines from Mr. and Mrs. William Grant, of that city. Miss Grant was one of the belles of Philadelphia. With her parents she lived at No. 1710 Green street. Mr. Day is from Springfield, Mass. The young couple overcame the opposition to their wadding at one time, but for some reason the young woman's parents withdrew their consent, and Tuesday las Miss Grant and Mr. Day planned to elope. Mrs. Grant at once became aware of the situation and her daughter

There was a war council and a treaty of peace was signed. Mr. Grant agreed that if he could not prevent the marriage it would be according to his notions, and it was to have taken place on Sunday. It would have, but some friend of the frants talked about elopement being mipped in the bud and there was a publication in a Philadelphia paper of the story, saying that the wedding would take place on Sanday.

That is said to have angered Mr. Grant, and he refused to permit the wedding and would not name a day. On Saturday Mr. Day was waiting at the Hotel Walton with his mother. Miss Grant met them at the hotel. They talked it over, and decided to come to this city. After getting aboard the train they sent a telegram to Mr. Grant saying they were on their way to New York to be married.

With a two-hour start they figured they might be generous and let him know it was to be. In this city Mrs. Day and Miss Grant suggested that they wait until Sunday, but, fearful that Mr. Grant would some on the next train, Mr. Day consuited the Rev. H. M. Warren at the hotel, and the wedding was performed a few minutes after midnight.

> Attempts to Board a Moving Train and Mas a Narrow Escape,

Sadie Rubenstein, a girl of twenty, attempted to board a Subway train at Ninety-sixth street after it had started Contest Started in French early to-day, and as a consequence she narrowly escaped death.

The guard was closing the door when she attempted to push through. Her clothes caught in the door, and as the train moved off she was dragged the length of the platform, screaming loudly. The train was stopped and she was released, but not before her leg was fractured and her body cut and bruised. Miss Rubenstein was taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital. She said she lived at No. 1643 Madison avenue.
